If I am comparing the GUI and CLI for GitHub I would say that the GUI is more user-friendly than then CLI. However, it seems that CLI has more access to more features than the easier GUI has. I am pretty confused on this assignment as I have 0 experience with GitHub so I can't fully compare the two. I am hoping that this is just to see if we can add files to our repository. The GUI presents commands with images and buttons that are self-explanatory and do not need memorization. However, in contrast, the CLI requires memorization but can be quicker once you get past the learning curve.
